'Singham' of Karnataka Police Annamalai quits, may join politics

Bengaluru. Deputy Commissioner of Police (Bengaluru South) K Annamalai, who is popularly known as 'Singham' of Karnataka Police, resigned from his post on Tuesday. Annamalai, a native of Karur in Tamil Nadu, is a 2011-batch Karnataka cadre IPS officer. While there is a speculation that he could take a plunge in politics, in a letter addressed to his friends and well-wishers, he has not revealed any such plan. The letter is available on social media.

Annamalai's colleague and Director General of Police, Railways (Bangalore region) D Roopa Moudgal, in a tweet, however, said that Annamalai will enter politics. "Spoke to Annamalai, IPS @DCPSouthBCP. He has tendered resignation today. He is plunging into politics. It requires guts, boldness to leave cushy, secure, hard earned IPS job. Its heartening to see such achievers n youngsters diving into politics. Wishing him all the best."

Annamalai, in his letter, said that the decision (to resign) was well-thought out for over six-months' time. "Last year, my visit to Kailash Mansarovar was an eye-opener as it helped me see my priorities in life better. Madhukar Shetty sir's death in a way made me to re-examine my own life," he stated in the letter. Madhukar Shetty, a Karnataka cadre IPS officer, passed away on December 2018 in Hyderabad where he was being treated for swine flu. Annamalai has also written about his future plans in the letter. "For people who are speculating what next for me, I'm too small a man to have lofty ambitions. I just wanted to take some time out and enjoy those small things in life which I had missed out, be a good father to my son, who deserves every bit of my time as he is fast growing up, get into farming back home and see whether my sheep still listens to me as I'm no more a cop now."

Annamalai began his career as ASP of Karkala sub-division in 2013, before becoming SP of Udipi and Chikkamagaluru districts. He is known as an upright and strict officer. During his transfer from Udipi district, people in the district had protested his transfer.

Over 1,000 FPCs in Maharashtra non-functional or report zero business

These professionally-managed firms were expected to take the place of cooperative bodies which, over the years, have become either redundant or too politicised to work.

Pune. Over a year after the Union Budget 2018 gave Farmer Producer Companies (FPCs) a five-year tax holiday, their performance in Maharashtra shows that the central government's step hasn't helped them much as, of the 1,696 registered FPCs in Maharashtra, 1,048 have either reported no business or were found to be non-functional. Formed by farmers, the FPCs are companies registered under the Company's Act by farmers. These professionally-managed firms were expected to take the place of cooperative bodies which, over the years, have become either redundant or too politicised to work. Recognising the importance of the FPCs in the agri-ecosystem, the 2018 budget had tried to give them a boost by announcing a five-year tax holiday. The central government had hoped that this would ensure these grassroot-level companies expand their activities and explore newer business avenues. A survey, conducted by the Department of Agriculture, took into consideration the 1,696 FPCs that are registered with government bodies like the World Bank sponsored-Maharashtra Agriculture Competitiveness Project, which has been completed, Small Farmers Agribusiness Consortium and NABARD, among others. The survey studied the FPCs, the commodities they deal with and their turnover. Data showed that of the 1,696 FPCs, 308 were found to be non-functional and 740 were found to have either not reported any turnover or reported a turnover of 0. Of the remaining FPCs, 204 had reported turnover between Rs 10 and Rs 50 lakh per year, while 135 had reported turnover between Rs 7 and Rs 10 lakh. Only 104 FPCs have reported a turnover above Rs 50 lakh. Aurangabad had reported the highest number of non-working FPCs, 45, while Pune had reported the highest number of FPCs which have reported 0 or no turnover, 99.

On an average, almost 50 per cent of the registered FPCs in any district have either been shut down or failed to report their turnover. The data poses several questions about the functioning and the condition of FPCs in Maharashtra. Yogesh Thorat, managing director of the MahaFPC — the umbrella body of the FPCs in the state — said almost 50 per cent of the registered FPCs in the state were being taken care of by a government body. "Unfortunately, once the hand-holding process ended, they are at a loss about their next step. For the other half, lack of any direction has affected their growth as they were not clear about their business plan," he said.

No regulatory policy, Haryana, Punjab autos make a killing Chandigarh. The intensive challan drives against auto-rickshaws (three-wheelers), conducted by State Transport Authority (STA) and UT Traffic Police, has failed to put the increasing number of autos in the city under the ambit of law. The recent instruction issued by Punjab and Haryana High Court to Chandigarh Administration regarding the formulation of a regulatory policy to keep a check on the increasing numbers of autos (three-wheelers) in city has, in fact, raised a matter of concern. The STA, which stopped registration of new three-wheelers in Chandigarh due to their sheer number (6,000), passed the buck to neighbouring cities of Mohali and Panchkula for managing the hectic presence of autos. Despite this, road safety experts maintain that it is the responsibility of local authorities to keep a tab on this menace.

As many as 7,136 autos, including those bearing Chandigarh, Panchkula and Haryana registration numbers, have been challaned in the city since January 1 to May 15 in this year alone. Challans were issued by STA and

UT Traffic Police separately. STA alone has challaned 488 autos, including those registered with Tricity, for various traffic violations. Chandigarh Traffic Police has challaned 6,648 autos and impounded 241 autos for various traffic offenses. STA, Secretary, Harjeet Singh Sandhu, said, "We have stopped registration of new autos in Chandigarh. We are not authorised to register new autos if 6,000 auto-rickshaws have already been registered in the city. The real problem is that neighbouring cities of Panchkula and Mohali have no bar on the number of autos they register. We challan autos bearing other states' number plates also. There is no rule that can prevent the entry of autos registered with other states, including Haryana and Punjab, in Chandigarh. We can challan all auto-rickshaws for violating traffic rules and permits." According to Mohali's Transport Department, 13,200 auto-rickshaws have been registered in Mohali, and 5,000 in Panchkula. Harman Sidhu, a road safety expert, said, "There is not a single entry and exit point of Chandigarh, where you will not find unregulated and long queues of autos. These queues encroach upon cycle tracks and pedestrian paths. They are rashly driven and the stop the auto-rickshaws in the middle of the road just to pick up passengers. This invites road accidents. Despite the fact that in Chandigarh, registration of new autos has stopped, people continue to purchase autos and run these on road with temporary registration numbers." A senior traffic police officer said, "We regularly challan autos for violation of traffic rules. The challan drive is still going on and is being conducted by Chandigarh Traffic Police. The challans were issued for not wearing uniform, lack of all necessary documents, etc. On May 25.

Pune doctor says was forced to say 'Jai Shri Ram' during morning walk in Delhi

Pune. Dr Arun Gadre, a Pune-based gynaecologist who visited Delhi earlier this week, was allegedly accosted by a group of men and forced to say 'Jai Shri Ram' while he was on a morning walk in the capital. Gadre, 61, who came back to Pune on Tuesday, told The Indian Express that he was "shocked" when the group, comprising four to five persons, stopped him while he was on his morning walk and directed him to say 'Jai Shri Ram'. "I must have muttered the words but they again asked me to shout it loudly... 'Jai Shri Ram'... and that's when I walked away," he said. The incident took place near Jantar Mantar in central Delhi early on Sunday, said Gadre. He had made a brief stopover in Delhi on his way to Bijnor in Uttar Pradesh and was staying at the YMCA near Jantar Mantar. The doctor said he didn't think he was targeted for any specific reason. "I don't think I was targeted or anything like that. Perhaps these youngsters randomly picked me up and directed me to say 'Jai Shri Ram'. It was a quiet, peaceful morning otherwise..." said Gadre. "It was a shock to me as not once in all my 61 years has such an incident occurred. Regardless of one's religion or caste, people should not be harassed in such a manner and it is crucial that the government and political parties ensure that not a single person ever faces such a situation," he said. He has not filed a police complaint over the incident as, said Gadre, he didn't "suffer any grievous physical injuries". "Moreover, I will never be able to identify any of these men, but this incident is a lesson to all of us as a society to let everyone coexist peacefully," he said. The doctor said in the last two days, he has received several messages from well-wishers who have expressed their support and condemned the incident. Gadre is also the president of the Alliance of Doctors for Health Care and, inspired by Baba Amte, he has also served in the tribal areas of Maharashtra for the last 30 years.

Dr Abhijit More, health activist and coordinator of the Aam Aadmi Party's Kotrudd assembly segment, condemned the incident. "These incidents are of concern and it is unfortunate that a doctor who works for the welfare of the masses was at the receiving end," said More.

Payal Tadvi suicide: Three doctors accused of harassing medical student arrested

Payal Tadvi, a second-year student of the Gynaecology and Obstetrics department of BYL Nair Hospital, allegedly ended her life after facing "extreme harassment" and hearing casteist remarks.

New Delhi. Three doctors accused of abetting the suicide of Dr Payal Tadvi in Mumbai were arrested on Wednesday. Tadvi, a second-year student of the Gynaecology and Obstetrics department of BYL Nair Hospital, allegedly ended her life after facing "extreme harassment" and hearing casteist remarks.

The three seniors, Dr Hema Ahuja, Dr Ankit Khandelwal and Dr Bhakti Mehare will be produced in a court on Wednesday. All of them have been named in the FIR filed under the SC/ST (Prevention of Atrocities) Act, IPC sections for abetment to suicide and Maharashtra Prohibition of Ragging Act, 1999.

While police arrested Mehare late Tuesday afternoon, the other two accused — Ahuja and Khandelwal — were absconding. Denying charges of harassment, the doctors in a letter to the Maharashtra Association of Resident Doctors (MARD) wrote, "If heavy workload is given the name of ragging, then we all have been ragged." According to the preliminary investigation, hours before her death, Tadvi was scolded in the operation theatre in front of other staff and patients and was seen crying as she left. Payal's husband Salman and mother Abida Salim alleged that the seniors harassed her for getting admission through Scheduled Tribe (ST) reservation, and also questioned her skills. They claim she had complained to senior hospital authorities at least three, but no action was taken. The family claims that for two days after a verbal complaint was made on May 13 by Payal's husband Dr Salman Tadvi to unit head Dr YI Ching Ling, the three seniors did not talk to her. On the third day, one of them allegedly threw a file at her and rebuked her for "shoddy" work. The next day, they allegedly threatened that they will not let her complete the year. "She cried every day. She said the complaint to the unit head yielded no response from the hospital. Instead, the torture increased every day," said Abida.

The family also claimed that Payal overheard a conversation among the three seniors in which they referred to her and allegedly said that "these caste people don't know anything" and that "she got admission through caste quota".

Hospital dean Dr R N Bharmal, meanwhile, has claimed that he was "never informed about this case". He added, "We have an anti-ragging cell but sadly she (Tadvi) did not approach it."

Delhi: Rejected by woman, man kidnaps her father, arrested

New Delhi. Unable to cope with a woman's refusal of his marriage proposal, a 24-year-old man allegedly kidnapped her father from Dwarka early Sunday morning. Police arrested Sanjeev Gill, a delivery agent with an online retailer, from Mathura Junction railway station in UP Monday morning and rescued the woman's father as well.

Police said the man was kidnapped around 3 am on Sunday, from outside his work place in Dwarka's Old Palam Road by four men who pulled up in a white car. "The woman's father lives in Delhi while the rest of the family, including the woman, moved to Bhopal two-three months ago because Gill kept troubling her," said a police officer. DCP (Dy) Vikas Anil Alphonse said, "The victim's daughter received calls from two different mobile numbers. Her father, who was on the line, said he was in Sonapat and advised her to marry one 'Sanju', as he is a good boy." It was this conversation that led the woman to suspect that her father had been kidnapped by Gill. Alphonse said the mobile numbers were put under surveillance and traced to Baraut in UP. "The accused kept changing his location; he was finally traced to Mathura and arrested," said a police officer. "Gill and his wife were due to get married, but it was called off as she suspected he was cheating on her." When Gill kept pressuring the woman and her family to agree to the wedding, the woman's father insisted the family move to Bhopal, where they hail from. "During investigation, the woman told us that Gill threatened to shoot her brother if she did not marry him... he texted her all this," said a police officer, who was a part of the team led by H O Dwarka's North police station Sanjay Kumar, which arrested the accused.
